

SPICE OF LIFE

Labor unions were strong in his city. On Halloween the boys pulled a lot of pickets off the fence of the union barber and made a bonfire of them. The barber bought some new pickets and nailed them on his fence himself. The barber was promptly fined $50 by the council for doing carpenter work which should have been done by a union carpenter. The barber thought this over for some time. Then he presented the carpenter's union with a bill for $1,375. "What's this for?" asked the chief of the carpenter's union. "Why," the barber replied, "that's what's due the barbers because the carpenters shave themselves." His fine was remitted. —San Francisco Argonaut.

In a great Western railway carriage, on the way up to London, a youth had disturbed and annoyed the other passengers by loud and foolish remarks during a great part of the journey. As the train passed Hanwell lunatic asylum he remarked:

"I often think how nice the asylum looks from the railway."

"Some day," growled an old gentleman, "you will probably have occasion to remark how nice the railway looks from the asylum." —Seattle Argus.

It was an amateur performance of "The Pirates of Penzance." The policemen's chorus having been encored twice, a third encore was demanded. This was the cause of some misunderstanding behind the scenes, and after a delay one solitary man in blue faced the footlights. In vain he waited for his companions, even beckoning them in his despair, but his individual efforts were not to meet with appreciation, for a voice from the gods shouted: "Hi, man, you're off your beat!" —San Francisco Argonaut.

"Didn't marry her, eh? I suppose you were afraid you could not support her in the style to which she had been accustomed?" "Oh, no, I was not at all afraid of that." "Then why didn't—" "It was she that was afraid I could not." —Houston Post.

Mrs. Firth—My husband is a perfect brute! Friend—You amaze me! Mrs. Firth—Yes, he is. Since the baby began teething nothing will quiet the little angel but pulling papa's beard, and—would you believe it?—yesterday he went and had his beard shaved off! —Brooklyn Eagle.

"For the making of billiard balls 500 elephants are needed every year," said the famous big game hunter in his lecture on India. "How strange," whispered Mrs. Winsome to the lady who sat next, "that people can teach such great beasts to do such delicate work." —New York Times.

"I like this quaint little mountain village of yours, waiter. I suppose I can get plenty of oxygen here?"

"No sir, we've got local option." —Baltimore American.

"We apple lovers must stand together for our favorite fruit today." "Certainly; let's show our esprit du core." —Baltimore American.

"Jones wanted to spend his vacation in the country and Mrs. Jones wanted to go to the seashore." "How did they settle it?" "It is evident that you are not married." —New York Sun.
